NOTE: Effective July 1, 1994, the Colorado Educator Licensure Act was implemented. This act involves changes in the professional standards for Colorado educational personnel. All candidates for initial educator licenses in Colorado (whether prepared in Colorado or other states) are required to take and pass one or more assessment examinations for teaching, special services, principal, and administrator licenses. Candidates must take the Basic Skills Assessment as a condition of admission into the UNC educator preparation programs. The Basic Skills assessment must be passed before an individual will be permitted to student teach. For more information about the educator licensure programs and assessment requirements, you may contact the College of Education licensure officer at UNC, 970-351-1624.
