

Forming a Presidential Search Advisory Committee

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended that the Board of Trustees approve the resolution to form a Presidential Search Advisory Committee.

BACKGROUND

On February 18, 2026, President Andy Feinstein notified individual members of the Board of Trustees of his intention to step down from his position as University of Northern Colorado (UNC) President. Following that decision, the Board of Trustees met on February 19, 2026, as part of the planned Finance and Audit Committee Meeting and then went into executive session to discuss a transition plan.

The Board of Trustees believes that a Presidential Search Advisory Committee is necessary to recruit and select the University President. The Committee, representing faculty, staff, students, alumni, donors, and the community, will help develop the candidate profile, job description, and leadership statement for a nationwide search. After interviewing applicants, the Committee will recommend qualified candidates to the Board, which makes the final hiring decision for UNC's next President.
