

International Women's Strike

A Day Without A Woman

3.8.17

"On International Women's Day, March 8th, women and our allies will act together for equity, justice and the human rights of women, through a one-day demonstration of economic solidarity. Let's raise our voices together to say that women's rights are human rights, regardless of a woman's race, ethnicity, religion, immigration status, sexual identity, gender expression, economic status, age or disability."

Join us at Scott-Willcoxon Hall for support, conversation and community.

For those unable to strike, we see you. We hear you. Individuals who choose to participate, the Women's Resource Center is here and will provide a space, as well as resources, for participation and solidarity in this movement. We want to acknowledge that not all individuals have the ability to strike, for fear of losing ones job, intimidation, loss of wages, etc. For more information about leave practices associated with the Strike, contact UNC Human Resources at 970.351.2718.

In observance of the International Women's Strike, and the integral presence and contributions of women at UNC, the Women's Resource Center will close our doors on 3.8.17.
