

SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT
Faculty Application for a Graduate Assistant

The Sociology Department provides graduate assistants to faculty members on a competitive basis. The number of graduate assistants available each semester depends on decisions made at the graduate school. Priority is given in the following order: preparing external grant applications, preparing internal grant applications, research projects, assistance with classes.

Faculty Name Harmony Newman

Proposed Start Date January 2022 Anticipated Completion Date May 2022

Project Title

Research Assistant

Overview of Tasks/Expectations

The selected GA will participate in research for a grant-funding project examining sexist experiences in geology field camps. These tasks will include literature reviews, detailed note-taking duties for weekly group meetings, task management, helping construct data collection instruments, testing data collection instruments, sensitivity training, and possibly early data collection.

Qualifications

Students should be self-motivated, responsible, and very organized. They should have an interest in engaging in diverse research projects and motivation to participate in creative discussions and make contributions to research designs.

Professional Outcomes

Students will develop skills in research review, project design, and possibly grant writing as well. Students may be able to participate in public presentation of data. Students may be offered co-authorship of publications as appropriate.

Faculty Signature Harmony Newman

Date. 10/10/22