

Weld County Probation Department

Are you looking for an internship where you can get the same experience as a real probation officer? This is the place for you!!!

Pros:

1. You get the same experience as a real Probation Officer by being given a small case load.
2. You are treated as a member of the team and are greatly appreciated by the Probation Officers you are helping.
3. You get an opportunity to encourage clients and motivate them towards success.

Cons:

1. You have to deal with clients who sometimes are not easy to work with.
2. You are required to do a lot of paperwork.
3. The atmosphere is somewhat negative in terms of typically having to discuss negative issues. It can get hard to hear continuously.

Working at the Weld County Probation Department requires an individual who is willing to work hard and be professional. Individuals interested in this internship should have flexible characteristics in terms of being able to be polite, but also stern with clients. Probation Officers not only supervise people in making sure they are complying with their court orders, but they also have the opportunity to motivate and give direction to their clients. An individual who is eager to become a Probation Officer should definitely do this internship because you will get the experience you desire firsthand!
