

2-1-204 Steps for Appeal.

All periods are in working days; this chart is to assist you but does not take the place of the provisions of the policy. When in doubt, follow the provisions of policy.

NOTE: For a non-contractual period, see 2-1-204(h)

This document shows UNC's Academic Appeal Procedure "at a glance". The full text of this Procedure can be found at: unco.edu/trustees/pdf/board-policy-manual.pdf, beginning in section 2-1-201.

The purpose of the academic appeal process is to provide a means for resolving disputes concerning an academic decision (including a final course grade) that a student considers to be arbitrary, capricious, or a violation of university policy. It is recommended that a student start by contacting the faculty member who made the decision to determine if the situation can be resolved. If the student is not satisfied with the outcome of the informal communication and would like to initiate the Academic Appeal Procedure, they must do so in writing to the faculty member or the appropriate Department Chair/Program Director/Unit Leader.
